

The top seller of live chile bedding plants in the country, Cross Country Nurseries, dba ChilePlants.com, has listed their top five best selling varieties, and it's no surprise that superhots dominate the list.

1.

BHUT JOLOKIA

This position figures because of all the superhots, Bhuts have garnered the most publicity over the past few years, and it doesn't seem to matter that it's been dethroned as the hottest pepper in the world.

2.

TRINIDAD SCORPION

Coming on strong is this variety, now generally thought to be the hottest, at the upper levels measuring 1.2 to 1.4 million Scoville Heat Units. It has a better name and a more interesting pod shape.

3.

7 POT

The third Trinidad variety in a row places in the top 3, showing the remarkable trend of superhots originating in the country of Trinidad & Tobago.

4.

HABANERO RED SAVINA™

This plant-patented variety is generally thought to be a variation on the 'Red Caribbean' varieties that are spread around the islands. It never tested as hot as 577,000 SHU in any other laboratory tests except the one that got it the Guinness record.

5.

BHUT JOLOKIA YELLOW

Black and purple is the color of the Bhut Jolokia. This is the most potent of the Scoville peppers.
